What to Be Thankful for at The Journal of Continuing Education in Nursing

November is the time many citizens in the United States celebrate Thanksgiving. Because that word is so prominent in my mind this month, it seems like the best time of year to acknowledge those who make me thankful to be affiliated with such a fine team. The word “thanksgiving,” according to the dictionary, means the act of giving thanks. If you submitted a manuscript for our consideration, thank you. If you have had a manuscript published in or accepted for publication by The Journal of Continuing Education in Nursing, thank the peer reviewers and Editorial Advisory Board members. If you have enjoyed reading the articles that appear each month, thank you for subscribing to or accessing The Journal of Continuing Education in Nursing. If you are thinking about submitting a manuscript, these are the people, your peers, who help make the publication happen. To our authors, our readers, and our support staff, thank you for all your work and dedication. And, to our peer reviewers and Board members, thank you for all of your work on behalf of professional nursing!

Thanksgiving is a time to give thanks. A journal is only as good as the manuscripts submitted and the reviewers who provide their best thinking about the submissions. Through the hard work of the Associate Editors, the Editorial Advisory Board members, our Special Consultants, and the Review Panel members, we continue to do our best to bring our readers information that is important, relevant, and timely. Without peers to review our work, scholarship would have little meaning for shaping the profession’s future.

Thank you to all for helping the profession of nursing to continue to improve!

Patricia S. Yoder-Wise, RN, EdD, NEA-BC, ANEF, FAAN
Editor-in-Chief
psywjcen@aol.com

The author discloses that she has no significant financial interests in any product or class of products discussed directly or indirectly in this activity, including research support.
doi:10.3928/00220124-20101026-01